

How to create database in MySql?
How to create tables in database and columns in table?
What is primary key in a MySql table?
What is a unique key in MySql table?
What are the different datatypes of MySQL columns?

Next Set of Questions:

How to insert a row in table?
How to select all rows from table?
How to select limited rows from table?
How to change order of selected rows?
How to select rows from table having specific column(s) value(s)?
How to group the selected rows of table?

How to select rows from two or more tables?
How to join two tables?

At this point you should know about Left Join, Outer Join, Inner Join. When you will be done with selecting rows or data from tables you should proceed further by learning,

How to update a row in table?
How to delete a row in table?
How to Alter table in database?

When you will be able to answer or know the answers of all above questions, you will know pretty much all the basic stuff of Mysql.

Some advance concepts of MySql are stored procedures, triggers, constraints you can look into them too, to have a string grip over mysql.